GENERAL

The Immigration and Naturalization Service is responsible for enforcement and administration of Federal statutes relating to immigration and naturalization. This involves the examination of every person seeking entry into the United States to determine his admissibility under the provisions of immigration laws. It also includes granting or denying petitions for benefits such as preferences within quotas, importation of alien workers, and discretionary relief or waivers for those seeking permanent residence while in the United States.

The Service is also charged with the prevention of illegal entry across the land borders or by sea or air as well as the detention, apprehension, and deportation of aliens illegally in the United States. This involves the investigation of the cases of aliens in the United States who through violation of status of admission or other violation of law become amenable to deportation, and the detention and deportation of such aliens.

Another principal area of responsibility is that of naturalization and citizenship. This includes the examination of aliens and witnesses to determine whether the aliens qualify for citizenship through naturalization; the presentation of the facts in each case and recommendations to the naturalization courts; and the issuance of certificates to derivative citizens. The Service also carries forward a program of cooperation with the public schools in fostering citizenship education.

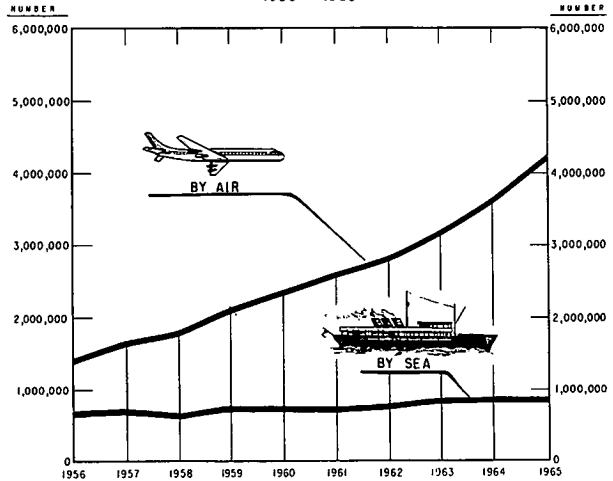

TRAVEL CONTROL AND ADJUDICATIONS

Travel Control

All persons seeking entry into the United States must be inspected to determine whether they are United States citizens or aliens. If aliens, whether immigrants, returning residents, or aliens admitted for temporary periods, they must be examined to determine their admissibility into this country. Two coordinated policies have marked the conduct of these examinations. First, the Service continuously has made more efficient use of manpower. Secondly, it has made inspection formalities more convenient for the persons arriving, and at the same time has extended a warm welcome to visitors to this country. These objectives have been met by innovations in procedures as well as by improvements in the physical facilities where people are inspected.

The feasibility of the expanded issuance and use of nonresident alien Mexican border crossing cards to Mexican nationals in order to further facilitate travel across the Mexican border was studied during the year. Under the proposed procedure, the card would be the only document required to be presented by a Mexican national seeking to enter the United States as a visitor, whether for the purpose of shopping for a few hours in the border area or to visit the United States for a period up to 6 months.

Regulations relating to the submission of departure manifests by commercial air and sea carriers were amended during the year to provide for a more effective control of nonimmigrants. Some of the facilitation programs begun in prior years and continued during fiscal year 1965 were: Multiple inspections whereby an officer for one Federal inspection agency performs combined screening for the other agencies; preinspection of persons bound for the United States at ports in Canada, the Bahamas, and Bermuda; en route inspection of persons on certain large vessels, and a Service office at the New York World's Fair reopened for the second year.

Among the 5.1 million persons who arrived on 83,816 vessels and 239,816 aircraft were 1.7 million persons preinspected at ports outside the United

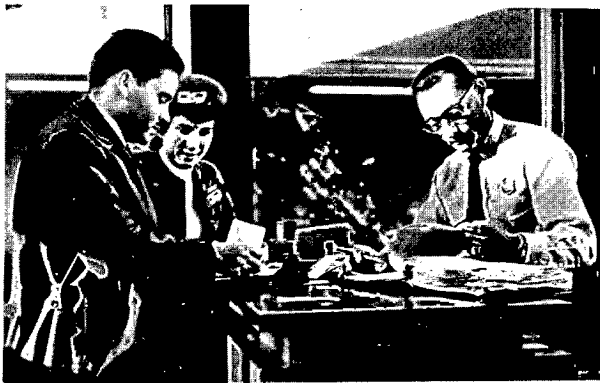

Immigrant Inspector boarding helicopter at San Diego to meet the aircraft carrier "Kitty Hawk" at sea, and inspect civilian technicians returning from Japan.

States. Contrary to the trend in recent years, the number of arriving vessels increased by 26 percent. This sharp increment is due in large measure to the increase in private pleasure craft. Consistent with past trends, the number of arriving aircraft increased by 17 percent over 1964.

Admissions

More than 186 million persons were inspected and admitted into the United States by immigration officers during fiscal year 1965. The gain of 7.7 million was a new high and exceeded last year's admissions by 4 percent. Multiple entries of persons admitted across the land borders or as crewmen accounted for 96 percent of the total. The other 4 percent arrived as passengers aboard vessels or aircraft or crossed the land borders for extended stays from Canada or Mexico. Alien entries exceeded 106.6 million and included 101.8 million alien border crossers from Canada and Mexico, an increase of 3 percent over the previous year. The remaining 4,867,332 were immigrants, documented nonimmigrants and lawfully admitted resident aliens returning from temporary visits abroad, crewmen, Mexican agricultural laborers admitted under Public Law 78, and others admitted on multiple entry documents.

Port Receptionist assists alien arrange his documents for inspection. More than 4,219,627 persons arrived by air, and were examined in 1965.

Immigrants. A total of 296,697 aliens were accorded status as lawfully admitted permanent residents of the United States during the year, an increase of 1.5 percent over fiscal year 1964. Of this total, 270,696 were issued immigrant visas abroad and admitted for permanent residence upon arrival in the United States. The remaining 26,001 were already in the United States and were granted permanent residence through adjustment of status procedures.

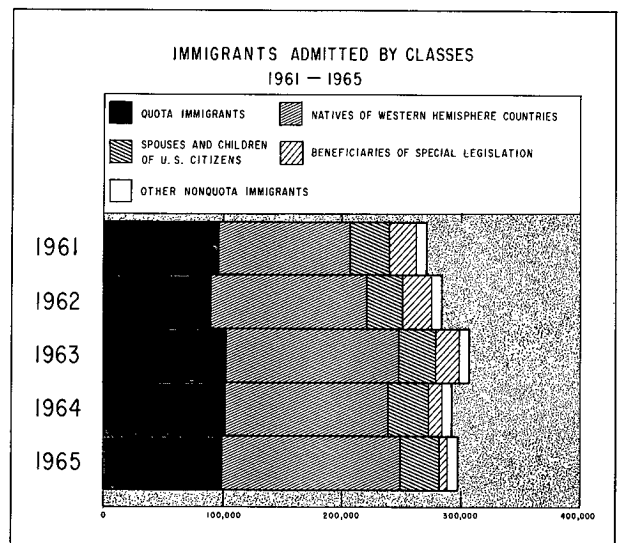

The Immigration and Nationality Act provides for two major classes of immigrants: Quota and nonquota. A numeric limitation or quota is established for all countries except specified independent countries of the Western Hemisphere. Under an established annual quota of 158,561 per annum, each quota area is allocated a fixed number equivalent to one-sixth of 1 percent of the number of persons of that national origin as recorded in the 1920 census. Quotas range from the minimum of 100 allotted to 81 countries to the maximum of 65,361 for Great Britain and Northern Ireland. During the year, 99,381 quota immigrants (63 percent of the total quota) were admitted to the United States.

Aliens with high skills and ability whose services are urgently needed in the United States and their spouses and children may be accorded first preference under the quota, upon approval of a petition submitted by a United States employer. The 2,376 highly skilled aliens admitted were accompanied by 2,610 spouses and children. Of these, 3,896 came from Europe, 727 from Asia, 149 from Africa and 214 from other areas of the world.

Close relatives of citizens and permanent resident aliens may be accorded second, third and fourth quota preferences depending upon the degree of relationship. Of the 13,082 immigrants within these preferences more than half were natives of only two countries, Italy and Poland, countries with a high demand for quota numbers, and relatively small quotas. There were 81,313 immigrants admitted under the nonpreference portion of the quota. Most of the aliens in the latter category were charged to the quotas for Great Britain and Northern Ireland, Germany and Ireland, countries with large quotas and no waiting list of applicants for immigrant visas, so that there was no advantage in seeking preferences.

In addition to aliens who are natives of specified Western Hemisphere countries, other nonquota immigrants include spouses and children of United States citizens, ministers of religion and other immigrants admitted under special legislation who are not subject to the numerical limitation of the immigration quotas. Nonquota immigrants who were admitted during 1965 numbered 197,316. The largest class of nonquota immigrants admitted was the 149,368 natives of Western Hemisphere countries. Within this group, natives of Mexico accounted for 36,140, Canada for 37,679, Cuba for 19,734 and Colombia, South America, 10,846. The number of spouses and children of United States citizens who were admitted as immigrants totaled 32,714. These persons came principally from the countries of Italy, Germany, Greece, Japan, Formosa, Philippines, and Korea.

Special legislation designed to benefit refugees, or to reduce heavily oversubscribed quotas in the preference categories has been enacted in almost every congressional session since the Immigration and Nationality Act became law in 1952. In 1965, fewer immigrants were admitted under special legislation than in any year since the passage of the Immigration and Nationality Act: 4,392 refugees were adjusted to permanent resident status under the Act of July 14, 1960; 411 beneficiaries of second and third preference petitions were admitted nonquota under the Act of September 26, 1961; and 1,484 beneficiaries of first and fourth preferences were admitted nonquota under the Act of October 24, 1962.

Nonimmigrants. Aliens coming to the United States for temporary periods are admitted under one of several nonimmigrant classifications. A total of 2,075,967 nonimmigrants were admitted during the year, an increase of 19 percent over 1964 admissions. The phenomenal increase in visitors to the United States may be observed in the chart below.

The success of the "Visit U.S.A." program may be measured by the number of tourists from other countries who visited this country. Visitors for pleasure, the largest group of nonimmigrants, numbered 1,323,479 an increase of 20 percent over the preceding year. Another 175,500 nonimmigrants were admitted temporarily as visitors for business. Most of the visitors came from Canada, Mexico, and other countries of the Western Hemisphere; 476,656 came from European countries, 26 percent more than last year. The World's Fair in New York continued to attract a significant number of visitors to the United States from foreign countries.

Over 50,000 students accompanied by 4,032 spouses and children came from abroad to attend educational institutions in the United States. In addition, there were 33,768 exchange visitors admitted to the United States to participate in Government and privately-sponsored programs designed to further the international cultural exchange. There were 9,991 spouses and children of these aliens who accompanied them.

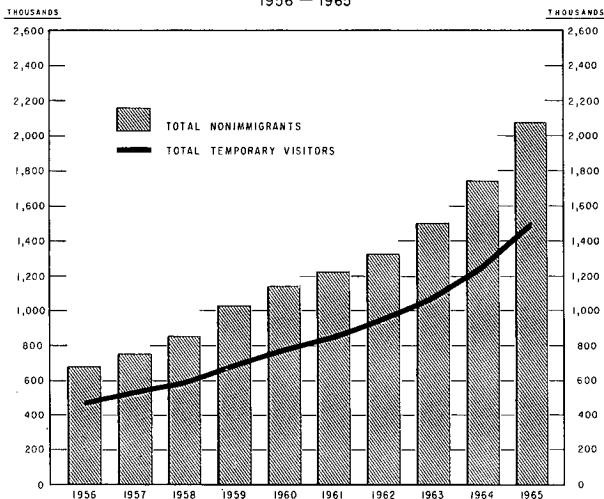

During the year, 8,295 persons of distinguished merit and ability, 2,920 trainees and 56,654 other nonimmigrant workers were brought to the United States temporarily under the Immigration and Nationality Act, which provides for the importation of foreign workers if like workers are not available in the United States. Included among the temporary workers admitted under specific agricultural and related labor programs were 13,281 Canadian woodsmen, 15,397 agricultural workers from the Caribbean area, 31 from Japan and 453 sheepherders from Europe. Mexican agricultural laborers brought to the United States under Public Law 78 numbered 100,876. This special legislation for the importation of agricultural workers from Mexico, which has been in effect since 1949, expired on December 31, 1964. Mexican agricultural laborers who entered after that date were admitted under the provisions of the Immigration and Nationality Act. Only 2,687 were admitted between December 31, 1964, and the end of the fiscal year.

Other nonimmigrants were 38,544 foreign government officials, 2,082 North Atlantic Treaty Organization officials, 14,026 official representatives to international organizations, 2,681 members of the foreign news media, and 7,639 treaty traders and investors. There were also 142,686 persons admitted who were travelling through the United States in continuous transit destined to other countries.

Crewmen. There were 1,872,673 alien crewmen who arrived at United States ports during the year and who were granted temporary shore leave. Permanent landing cards designed to serve as identification and to facilitate inspection are issued to bona fide alien crewmen. Since 1959, a total of 612,040 such cards have been issued.

United States Citizens. There were 79.5 million United States citizen entries to the United States during this year. Of these 74 million were frequent border crossers, 934,514 were crewmen, and 4,564,684 were citizens returning from overseas or from extended visits to Mexico or Canada. Citizen travelers returning from overseas or from extended trips to our neighboring countries increased by 11 percent over 1964 thus continuing the upward trend, evidenced since World War II.

Refugees

Refugee-escapees from Communist or Communist dominated countries of Europe and Western Asia, Cuban refugees, and Chinese refugees from Hong Kong were the three major refugee programs administered by the Service in 1965.

Cuban Refugees. Despite the more stringent measures taken by the Castro regime to prevent persons from leaving the island, some 1,142 Cubans managed to evade the patrols. Most of these refugees escaped from Cuba by small boats and were picked up at sea by the U.S. Coast Guard in the Florida area. After careful screening these Cubans were given refuge in the United States pending a time when circumstances will permit their return to their homeland. Since January 1, 1959, when Castro seized control, some 227,000 Cubans have been admitted in temporary status, and 56,526 have entered as immigrants.

Hong Kong Chinese. No new applications have been accepted since January 1, 1963, but the Service continued to process applications filed prior to that date by Chinese refugees in Hong Kong for parole under section 212(d) (5) of the Immigration and Nationality Act pursuant to a directive of May 23, 1962. Parole authorization has been limited to refugees whose cases were analogous to the quota preferences and to those who had applied for entry under the Refugee Relief Act of 1953 but who had not been accepted because of numerical limitations imposed by law. An alien seeking parole must undergo the same comprehensive security checks, thorough medical examinations and other prescribed screening procedures as an applicant for an immigrant visa. A total of 13,619 Chinese persons had been paroled into the United States by the end of June 1965. No legislation has been enacted to enable these refugees to become lawful permanent residents of the United States but the legislation now pending before the Congress, if enacted, may enable the adjustment of status of some of these refugees.

Refugee-Escapees (Act of July 14, 1960). Refugee-escapees from Communist countries continued to register with Service officers in France, Germany, Belgium, Austria, Italy, Greece and Lebanon under the so-called "Fair Share" law which was extended indefinitely by the Act of June 28, 1962. This law provides that the United States may accept 25 percent of the total number of eligible refugee-escapees who have availed themselves of resettlement opportunities offered by other countries. Thorough examinations are made before parole is authorized to insure that the entry of these refugees into the United States will not be prejudicial to the national welfare, safety, or security. Each refugee is examined again 2 years after entry and, if found eligible at that time, is accorded permanent resident status. Those granted such status may, after 5 years from the date of their initial arrival, petition for naturalization.

There were 4,267 refugee-escapees registered during fiscal year 1965 and 3,309 were approved for parole. The 3,184 who arrived in the United States brought the total to 17,760 since the enactment of the law. Principal countries from which these aliens fled were Yugoslavia (6,290), Rumania (4,339), United Arab Republic (3,309), Hungary (1,625), and Poland (994). By the end of the year 10,503 refugees had fulfilled the 2-year residence requirement and had been accorded permanent resident status.

Dominican Republic. With the outbreak of the armed conflict in the Dominican Republic and the entry of United States Armed Forces into that country, several thousand persons were evacuated from Santo Domingo by U.S. military forces. These evacuees were brought to San Juan, Puerto Rico, and emergency procedures were formulated to cope with the problem. Approximately 1,000 of these evacuees are still in Puerto Rico awaiting an opportunity to return to the Dominican Republic when the crisis has come to an end.

Inadmissible Aliens

Exclusions. The primary purpose of immigration inspection at United States ports of entry is to determine whether an applicant for admission meets the requirements of the Immigration and Nationality Act. If the inspecting officer believes the applicant to be inadmissible, he refers the case to a special inquiry officer for a determination of admissibility.

Service officers at ports of entry intercepted 188,207 inadmissible aliens during the year. Among them were 28,811 alien crewmen who were refused landing privileges, 160 stowaways who were detained on board vessels on which they arrived, 110,087 applicants for border crossing privileges, and 48,728 other aliens who withdrew their applications for admission rather than submit to exclusion proceedings. Four hundred and twenty-nine aliens were excluded and deported from the United States after formal hearings in their cases. Of those excluded, 317 were not in possession of proper documents, 24 were found inadmissible on criminal, immoral or narcotics grounds, 12 on subversive grounds, and 19 had been certified by United States Public Health officers as having mental or physical defects. Among those excluded were 35 persons born in Europe, 11 natives of Asia, 359 from North America, and 24 from other countries.

Waivers of Inadmissibility. Cases arise in which literal application of the exclusion provisions of the law may be inhumane or hamper public causes. The law, therefore, provides for certain discretionary waivers of inadmissibility. Thus, close relatives of citizens and alien residents (otherwise excludable) may be admitted to the United States if their exclusion would cause undue hardship to the relative in the United States, and their admission would not be contrary to the national welfare, safety, and security. Such waivers were approved in 937 cases during the year. Seventy-seven percent of the cases were approved by Service officers stationed abroad. There were 123 applications denied.

Alien "defectors" from communism who can establish that they have actively opposed communism for 5 years or more and whose admission to the United States would be in the public interest may be admitted despite their excludability for past membership in subversive organizations. In 1965, 105 such aliens were admitted and their cases reported to Congress.

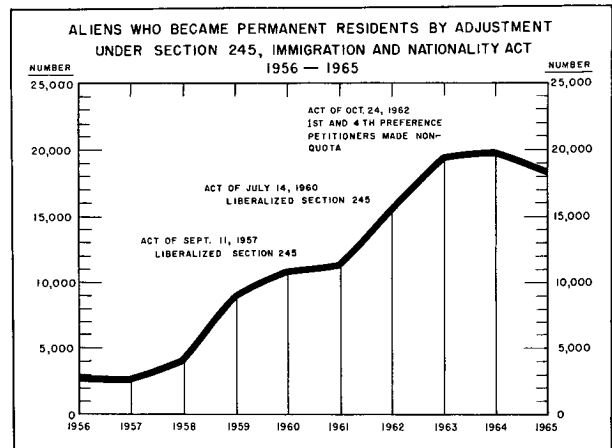

Waivers may also be granted to inadmissible aliens seeking admission for temporary periods as nonimmigrants. Discretion was exercised favorably in 3,636 cases after a finding that admission of such aliens would be in the public interest.

Adjustment of Status

Applications for Status as Immigrant. Aliens, other than crewmen and natives of contiguous countries or nearby islands, who have been inspected at ports of entry and either admitted or paroled into the United States may apply under section 245 of the Immigration and Nationality Act for status as permanent residents without leaving the country to obtain immigrant visas.

In fiscal year 1965 there were 18,408 such applications approved and 2,439 denied. Included among the 18,358 aliens granted lawful permanent resident status in fiscal year 1965 were 943 persons whose services were urgently needed in the United States and 534 of their spouses and children, 6,217 spouses and unmarried minor children of United States citizens, 1,435 preference quota immigrant relatives of citizens or permanent resident aliens, 4,837 nonquota natives of Western Hemisphere countries and 3,841 nonpreference quota immigrants. Over two-thirds of the successful applicants had entered the United States as temporary visitors, 17 percent as students and the balance in various other nonimmigrant categories. Germany, Italy, Poland, United Kingdom, China, and Colombia were the principal countries of birth represented.

Aliens who became permanent residents by adjustment under section 245 of the Immigration and Nationality Act.

Creation of Record of Lawful Entry. A total of 2,326 applications under section 249 of the Immigration and Nationality Act was received during the year from aliens who had resided continuously in the United States since prior to June 28, 1940, but in whose cases no record of lawful admission for permanent residence existed. Records were created in 2,055 cases and denied in 109 cases.

Other Adjustments. During the year, a total of 4,392 refugee-escapees, previously paroled into the United States under the Act of July 14, 1960, were examined by Service officers and were found admissible and accorded permanent resident status. Also adjusted to permanent resident status were 43 former officials of foreign governments or of international organizations and members of their families under section 13 of the Act of September 11, 1957, which authorizes a maximum of 50 such adjustments annually. Other adjustments included 881 suspension of deportation cases and 18 Hungarian refugees.

Adjudications

The applications and petitions adjudicated by the Service deal with benefits under the immigration laws which vitally affect both the rights of aliens to enter or remain in the United States and their activities while in this country. In 1965, 755,716 applications and petitions for various benefits under the immigration laws were adjudicated by Service officers. This was an increase of more than 37,000 over fiscal year 1964.

The Service is acutely aware of the need to explain the standards of basic fairness and the fundamental concepts of due process to applicants and petitioners, many of whom are unfamiliar with our language and customs as well as our immigration laws. During the year a great deal of information, previously unavailable, concerning procedures was brought to public knowledge by means of Federal regulations.

Among the items published were additional information regarding the documents required to support various applications and petitions; the procedure for revalidation of immigrant visa petitions; information concerning validity of visas, re-entry permits, and alien registration receipt cards when used as travel documents; the procedure for furnishing public charge bonds prior to issuance of immigrant visas; information regarding waiver of grounds of excludability; and limitations upon the period of initial admission and extension of stay of various classes of nonimmigrant aliens.

In addition to the requirement that notices of denial must set forth in writing the specific reasons for denial of any application or petition, the regulations were amended to permit the applicant, petitioner, or his authorized representative to inspect the record of proceeding which constituted the basis for the decision. The only information which cannot be exhibited for inspection is classified material.

By means of internal supervision and procedures the Service is striving to achieve uniformity in decision making. In order to provide guidelines to the public which demonstrate the bases on which decisions are being made in various types of applications and petitions, 70 decisions have been selected since July 1964 and have been published or are in the process of being published as precedents. Published decisions are available on purchase from the Government Printing Office or for examination at the principal offices of the Service.

Visa Petitions. A petition must be filed in behalf of an alien seeking nonquota status as the spouse or child of a United States citizen, or preference quota status as the married son or daughter of a United States citizen or permanent resident alien, or as the parent, brother or sister of a United States citizen. During the year, 31,341 visa petitions were approved for spouses and children of United States citizens. Half of these petitions were approved by Service officers stationed in Europe and the Far East. There were 23,383 close relatives of United States citizens and resident aliens who were accorded preferences within the quotas.

Nonquota status was also accorded 1,538 "eligible orphans" upon petitions filed by their adoptive or prospective adoptive parents after inquiry and investigation both in the United States and abroad established that the child met the statutory definition of "eligible orphan," that the adoptive or prospective adoptive parents would be able to properly care for the child and, in the cases of orphans to be adopted in the United States, that the preadoption requirements of the State of proposed adoption had been met. Three-hundred and six of the orphan petitions were received in and adjudicated by Service offices in Europe, and 419 in offices in the Far East.

The highest quota classification, first preference, is reserved for highly educated or highly skilled aliens whose services are needed urgently in the United States. A total of 9,976 such petitions were received from employers or prospective employers in the United States to import such persons, of which 6,759 were approved and 1,703 denied after appropriate inquiry and investigation. Detailed reports were furnished the Congress in each case approved, as required by law.

During the year, Service officers adjudicated 14,449 petitions filed by employers in the United States to import, for temporary periods, aliens of distinguished merit and ability, other workers in short supply in the United States, and industrial trainees. Of these petitions, 13,635 were approved and 814 denied by the Service after consultation with other Government agencies, representatives of labor and management, and other appropriate agencies. Most of the petitions were for workers in short supply in the United States and included agricultural workers, woodsmen, shepherders, entertainers, athletes, and others granted admission for temporary periods. Strict controls are exercised over all temporary foreign workers.

Other Applications. Applications by nonimmigrants to extend their temporary stay in the United States were adjudicated in 240,964 cases during the year. This represents an increase of 10 percent over 1964 and is comparable to the increased tourism to the United States. Border crossing cards permitting temporary entry into the United States were issued to 179,965 aliens residing in Canada and Mexico who have occasion to enter the United States frequently; and 12,423 nonimmigrants, upon application, were permitted to change from one nonimmigrant class to another, i.e., visitor to student, student to treaty trader.

Schools desiring to enroll foreign students must be authorized to do so by the Service. Foreign students or exchange aliens must receive permission to transfer from one school or exchange program to another, and students must apply for permission to accept part-time employment. There were 39,069 applications in these categories adjudicated during the year, an increase of 12 percent over 1964. During the year the regulations pertaining to approval of schools for the attendance of foreign students were extensively amended to provide for clarification of standards which must be met by such schools and for a periodic review to determine whether approval of schools should be continued or revoked by the Service.

United States citizens who frequently cross the land borders were issued 14,377 certificates of identity to facilitate their reentry into the United States; 85,408 applications for reentry permits, extension of reentry permits and duplicate alien registration cards were adjudicated, up 9 percent over the previous year. Permission to re-apply was accorded 3,545 previously deported aliens and advance permission to return was given 182 lawfully resident aliens who otherwise would have been inadmissible upon return to the United States following brief absences abroad.

Aliens who participate in exchange programs must leave the United States and reside for 2 years in their own country, or in another foreign country which is found by the Secretary of State to comply with the purpose and intent of the Mutual Educational and Cultural Exchange Act of 1961. Unless this requirement is fulfilled they cannot apply for immigrant visas or adjust their status to permanent residents, except where a waiver is granted. Such waivers are granted only when it is established that compliance with the 2-year residence requirement would cause exceptional hardship to the alien's United States citizen or lawfully resident alien spouse or child, or upon request of an interested Government agency.

Out of a total of 1,518 applications received during the year, 726 were granted. Of those granted 280 were cases of hardship to the exchange alien's immediate family, 446 were waivers granted at the request of other Government agencies and included doctors, scientists, and others whose skills and ability were needed in the United States.

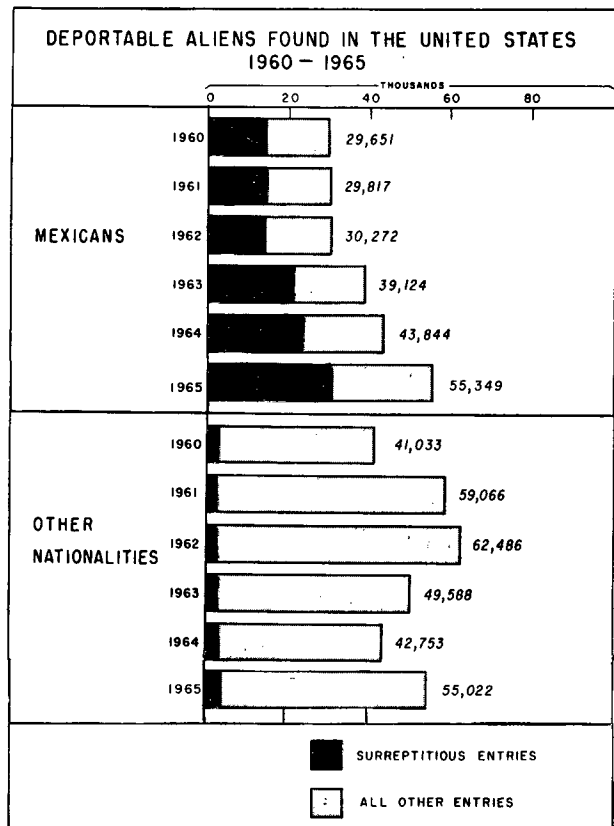

Service Operations Outside the United States

Service officers stationed abroad were engaged in such diversified activities as the obtaining and coordinating of information relating to subversives, criminals, alien smuggling, and counterfeit documents. They preinspected passengers at points outside the United States, and processed and assisted refugees fleeing from Communist tyranny, and orphans being adopted by United States citizens.

Additionally, immigration officers in Europe, the Far East, and Mexico, adjudicated 30,330 applications and petitions filed in foreign countries by United States citizens and aliens. Agricultural workers, shepherders, and other temporary workers were screened and oriented prior to the alien's departure for the United States.

BORDER PATROL AND INVESTIGATIONS

One of the primary functions of the Service is to prevent illegal entry into the United States, to find aliens in the United States in illegal status, and to institute proceedings for the deportation or required departure of such aliens.

Deportable aliens found in the United States—1960-65.

Deportable Aliens Located

For the first time in a decade, the number of deportable aliens located exceeded 100,000. The 1965 total of 110,371 deportable aliens located by Service officers represented a 27.5 percent increase over 1964.

One factor in this increase was the greater number of Mexican nationals found in illegal status, an increase of 26.2 percent (43,844 in 1964 to 55,349 in 1965). As in fiscal year 1964, Mexican nationals accounted for approximately 50 percent of the aliens located in illegal status. The various nationality groups are shown in the table below:

Nationality	Fiscal years		Percent change
	1964	1965
Mexican.....	43,844	55,349	+26.2
Cuban.....	2,063	1,808	-12.4
Canadian.....	8,230	8,063	-2.0
British West Indian and British Honduran.....	1,907	1,982	+3.9
Other Western Hemisphere.....	5,741	8,700	+51.5
Chinese.....	5,290	5,925	+12.0
Greek.....	3,334	4,699	+40.9
All others.....	16,188	23,845	+47.3
Total aliens found.....	86,597	110,371	+27.5

Status at Entry. Another contributing factor to the increase in deportable aliens located was the shipping strike along the eastern seaboard. The number of alien crewmen (20,557) deportable on technical grounds when their ships remained in port beyond the 29-day statutory limit represented a 70.1 percent increase over last year. Willful crewman violations increased 10 percent to 2,389, compared with 2,171 in 1964. The 123 stowaways found ashore represent a new low since World War II.

Of the 52,666 aliens legally admitted who violated their status of admission, 39,213 were visitors, 3,424 students, 2,753 agricultural workers, 5,672 other nonimmigrants, and 1,604 immigrants. Exclusive of the number of crewmen technical violators, the visitors admitted who violated status represent 43.7 percent of the deportable aliens located.

Among the 32,938 who entered without inspection were 29,693 Mexican aliens. This represents an increase of 31 percent over last year. Most of the increase occurred in the last half of fiscal 1965, after the Bracero Act expired.

Of the 110,371 aliens found in illegal status, 33,179 had been in the United States less than 72 hours, 19,471 for more than 72 hours but less than 30 days, and 21,492 from 2 to 6 months. Only 15,672 or 14 percent had been here for longer than 6 months.

Smuggling, Crewmen, and Stowaway Controls. Border Patrol officers located 1,730 aliens who had been induced or assisted to enter unlawfully or who had been transported unlawfully after entry. This represents a 45 percent increase in this category over last year. Violators of statutes relating to the inducing, smuggling and transporting of unlawfully entered aliens numbered 525, a figure which has been exceeded only nine times in the past 41 years. In 1927, 825 smugglers were apprehended, and in the 8-year period, 1949 through 1956, the number of smugglers rose from 635 to a peak of 1,822 in 1954, declining to 928 in 1955 and to 765 in 1956. The principal attraction for the aliens was the opportunity to work. However, strengthening of line and backup operations resulted in better control and interception of more violators before they reached interior destinations. The trend during the latter part of the year reflects larger groups of aliens being smuggled and an increased tendency toward commercialism.

Service investigators completed 692 smuggling investigations during the year. Successful prosecutions of smugglers were completed in 177 cases and resulted in aggregate sentences of 145 years imprisonment and fines of $10,550. Two examples of the smuggling operations follow:

Antoine Clark, a native of Haiti and citizen of the British West Indies, was found guilty in the United States District Court, Miami, Fla., on seven counts of smuggling Haitian aliens into the United States from the Bahamas. For fees of $200 each, he furnished the aliens various types of documentary evidence reflecting the bearers to be citizens of the United States. Clark was sentenced on January 15, 1965, to serve 30 months, and a deportation order will be executed upon the completion of his sentence.

Investigation is continuing in the case of two United States citizens who, with others, engaged in a conspiracy in which farm workers were recruited in Mexico for employment in northern California. After arranging for their employment in advance, aliens were solicited in Tijuana, Mexico, and induced to come to the United States to accept more lucrative employment than was available in Mexico. With full knowledge that the aliens had no legal right to enter the United States, these citizens transported approximately 100 such aliens from the border area to northern California and harbored them in warehouses after admonishing them of possible danger of apprehension by Immigration officers. Eighty-four of the aliens were apprehended on June 14 and 15, 1965.

Operations on the St. Lawrence Seaway closed for the winter months on December 5, 1964, and reopened on April 8, 1965. During the period the Seaway was open to vessels, officers at Massena, N.Y., boarded 284 vessels and verified the departure of 736 mala fide crewmen who had been denied landing privileges and ordered detained on board. Since the opening of the Seaway, there have been no successful desertions in this area. The 2,389 crewmen who had succeeded in deserting their vessels and 123 stowaways who had landed or were found as unreported on board vessels were apprehended by Service officers.

Patrol Inspectors searching ship for stowaways.

The effectiveness of these programs is indicated in the following cases. Three Chinese crewmen who had been ordered detained on board the M/T World Universal absconded on February 12, 1965, at Wilmington, Del., and engaged a taxi to take them to an address in New York City. The taxi driver, suspicious of illegal entry, furnished the New York address to the dispatcher for transmittal to our Philadelphia office. The New Jersey State Police were notified and the aliens were apprehended and turned over to this Service.

While searching the S/S Santa Margarita upon its arrival at Jacksonville, Fla., on August 30, 1964, Service officers located four undeclared stowaways hiding in a hold. Three of the stowaways were citizens of Chile, and the other, a citizen of Peru. They had taken cans of milk and rice on board, had eaten bananas which were stowed in the hold, and had obtained drinking water from a refrigeration drain.

The American S/S Green Dale arrived coastwise at New Orleans from Wilmington, Del., and berthed at the Army terminal. A patrol inspector received a call for assistance from the chief officer of the vessel. The patrol inspector found the incident to be an attempt by the officer's bedroom steward to remove something from behind an inspection plate in the air vent in the bedroom steward's storeroom. Since it appeared to be a smuggling attempt a customs agent was called and a search revealed 12 pounds of hashish with an estimated value of $76,000.

Cooperation with Other Law Enforcement Agencies. Our policy of fostering mutual cooperation with all law enforcement agencies has again reaped dividends during the past fiscal year. Border Patrol officers arrested and released to appropriate agencies 727 law violators. Conversely, other law enforcement agencies have delivered to our officers 4,452 violators of the Immigration and Nationality Act. Some typical cases of other law violators apprehended follow:

As a result of a lookout posted in June, officers at the Oceanside, Calif., checkpoint intercepted a resident alien with 145 pounds of marijuana valued at $150,000. Patrol officers, during fiscal year 1965, have seized narcotics valued at $393,474. During the year two off-duty officers assisted in the apprehension and identification of a bank robber who had fled on foot immediately after a holdup.

In three separate actions at Blaine, Wash., patrol inspectors made these apprehensions: Two prisoners who had escaped from a penitentiary in Canada and had committed an armed robbery after their escape; a suspected murderer who has been arraigned and charged with first degree murder in connection with a series of gasoline station robberies, during which two service station employees were murdered; and two brothers with extensive criminal records, the latter are wanted in Canada for burglary and are presently awaiting trial on a charge of having blown a safe and stolen $4,000. More than $3,500 of the money has been recovered.

Programs aimed at the control of border criminal activity and the identification of alien criminals likely to attempt entry into the United States continued during the year with close liaison between Service officers and law enforcement officials in Canada and Mexico. The following cases are indicative of these liaison efforts:

Georges Lemay, described as one of Canada's "most wanted" criminals was the subject of an outstanding warrant charging conspiracy and bank robbery involving the Bank of Nova Scotia in Montreal, Canada, in July 1961, during which $500,000 and other valuables were stolen. His photograph was shown on the first worldwide television broadcast via "Early Bird" satellite on May 3, 1965, and he was identified by a resident of Fort Lauderdale, Fla., as a person using the alias "Roy" and residing aboard the sloop "Triana" in a marine basin in that city. His apprehension followed on May 6, 1965, and he was ordered deported to Canada on June 4, 1965. While his appeal was pending he escaped from the custody of the Sheriff of the Dade County jail and has not been located.

Elizabeth Victoria Spedding, who had been convicted in 1960 for her activities in operating an international call-girl ring, and who was subsequently deported on two occasions, boarded an aircraft at Toronto, Canada, on July 25, 1964, under the name of Liza Langley, destined to the United States. While en route, her true identity was discovered and she was arrested on arrival at New York. On July 28, 1964, she was ordered deported to Canada, and on January 14, 1965 was sentenced to 1 year for illegal reentry. At the end of the fiscal year she was confined at Alderson, W. Va. She also served a previous sentence for illegal reentry resulting from an earlier attempt to resume her unlawful residence in New York City in 1962.

Gaston Giguere was wanted in Montreal, Canada, on warrants charging him with 13 armed robberies and an attempted murder. He was traced to Pawtucket, R.I., where he was apprehended on January 15, 1965. He was deported to Canada on January 18, 1965, and given over to the custody of the Montreal police officials.

Foreign-Born Law Violators

Caribbean Programs and Problems. The unrest and political upheavals in Cuba, the Dominican Republic, and other countries of the Caribbean area have created somewhat special problems of enforcement for the Service.

The Service Caribbean Investigations Coordination Program and its indexes maintained at Miami again proved to be of ever-increasing value as one of the most effective investigative tools in preventing the entry into the United States of Latin

An investigator checking personnel of circus for reported illegal aliens in Los Angeles.

American aliens of the subversive, criminal, immoral, and narcotic classes. Other agencies also continued to find these indexes extremely helpful.

About 15,000 new reference cards were added to the index during the year, bringing the total to approximately 165,000, including the names of 411 individuals who are suspected unregistered Latin American foreign agents. Over 80,000 record checks were made of the index during the year, and relating records were located in over 7,000 cases. As a result of these checks 325 subversive, criminal, immoral, and narcotic investigations were initiated.

The 908 investigations of Cubans conducted during the year included 445 allegedly of the subversive class, and 73 alleged to be of the criminal, immoral, and narcotic classes. Some of these cases involved aliens with subversive backgrounds who attempted to enter the United States illegally. When apprehended, they claimed political asylum as Cuban refugees. Others, after having been granted Cuban refugee status in the United States, were found participating in pro-Castro activities.

Example of such cases follow: Antolin Uset-Munoz, a corporal of Castro's Revolutionary Navy and suspected Cuban agent was apprehended near San Ysidro, Calif., on February 23, 1964, and deported to Mexico on July 15, 1964. Rene Pacifico Munoz-Hernandez, a former member of the Communist Party in Cuba was apprehended near Brownsville, Tex., on December 21, 1964, and deported to Mexico on March 4, 1965, after Service investigation had produced evidence of his subversive background. Hector Manuel Augustin Eduardo Angulo-Rodriguez, admitted to the United States as a student in 1960 and subsequently granted asylum on the basis of his claim of being a Cuban refugee, was arrested in New York City for disorderly conduct while participating in a pro-Castro demonstration, and departed for Cuba on August 11, 1964, after his status as a Cuban refugee was revoked.

Other subversive aliens from the Caribbean area whose departure from the United States was effected during the year included Manuel Antonio Perez Sosa Font, Chief of the Central Information Agency of the Dominican Republic under Trujillo. He was deported on July 8, 1964. Angel Luis Ruis-Silvestre, and Federico Antonio Gerardino-Suazo, both officers in the Dominican Military Intelligence (SIM) under Trujillo, departed on July 22, 1964 and February 27, 1965, respectively. Jaime Cardona Londono, a Colombian, considered a potential threat to the safety of the President of the United States because of having written letters threatening the lives of President Johnson and his family, was deported on December 24, 1964. Max Serge Duthely, suspected Haitian Communist, who disappeared after entering the United States as a visitor, was located and required to leave the United States on February 1, 1965.

Carlos Barrinat y Gonzalez de Posada, an officer in the intelligence system of the Castro government, was ordered excluded and deported from the United States on the charge that he had departed from or remained outside the United States to avoid or evade training or service in the Armed Forces of the United States. He had previously been a legal resident of the United States, but deserted the U.S. Army in 1954 and returned to Cuba.

Internal Security and the Foreign Born. In addition to the specific program concerned with aliens from the Caribbean area, the Service continued effectively to pursue its main aims in the antisubversive program. These include detection and identification of foreign-born subversives; gathering evidence for use in preventing them from receiving any of the benefits administered by the Service, such as naturalization or adjustment of status; and effecting their exclusion, denaturalization and deportation.

Border program investigative activities resulted in the exclusion of several important subversives. Among these were Hermengilda Pena-Valencia, a Mexican Communist leader in the field of education at Hermosillo, Sonora, Mexico; Samuel Lipszyc, an Argentinian member of the Communist Party of France and a writer for Communist publications; Gregory Bruce York, a resident of Vancouver, British Columbia, and former chairman on the York Township Peace Association of the Canadian Peace Congress. Subversive aliens required to depart as a result of information developed under the Border programs included Victor Manuel Alvarez-Gonzalez, a Mexican admitted as an agricultural laborer and subsequently identified as a Communist; and Peter Michael Riedel and Jack De Cock, naturalized Canadians, both of whom are active in the American Nazi Party.

Among aliens with subversive backgrounds who were deported or required to depart during the year were: Johannes Lodewijkx, a Netherlands businessman, following his plea of guilty and sentence suspended on a charge of conspiracy to ship heavy machinery secretly from the United States to Cuba; Yatsik Lukasik, a Polish student, against whom there were serious subversive allegations, and who departed to Poland on July 1, 1965; and Dr. Shirley Joan Chapple, a plastic surgical specialist from Auckland, New Zealand, who gained admission to the United States as a visitor by concealing her prior Communist Party membership. She departed January 25, 1965.

Louie Pon, an official of the Chinese Hand Laundry Alliance in New York City, was admitted to the United States in 1949 as a United States citizen on the basis of a false claim to United States citizenship. Deportation proceedings were instituted in 1963, during which he applied for suspension of deportation. Service investigation produced evidence concerning his affiliation with a New York pro-Communist Chinese language publication, the China Daily News, and on the basis of this information he was denied relief from deportation as a matter of administrative discretion. The Board of Immigration Appeals dismissed his appeal on June 30, 1965.

Foreign born of Criminal Classes. Of continued interest to the Service in its exclusion, deportation and denaturalization efforts, have been the alien or naturalized racketeers, and criminals who are engaged in syndicated crime and vice and who have become deeply imbedded in the roots of the country's growth and development. During the year 7,649 investigations of criminal, immoral, or narcotic cases were completed and 632 aliens were deported from the United States or required to depart.

Results of the Anti-Crime Program are reflected in the following cases:

Lorenzo Di Chiara, sought by Italian authorities who considered him a dangerous criminal and held a warrant for his arrest for armed robbery and stolen checks and bank notes, entered the United States as a stowaway in June 1964. He was apprehended in Brooklyn, N.Y., and was deported to Italy on March 24, 1965.

Lorenzo Rossano, an employee and associate of Joey Aiuppa, Cicero, Ill., vice boss, was ordered deported to Italy on December 28, 1964. Rossano's arrest record extending from 1930 to 1963 consisted of 17 arrests, including convictions for robbery with pistol, and burglary. His appeal from the December 28, 1964, order was dismissed by the Board of Immigration Appeals on July 13, 1965.

Georgios Ioannis Psaras, who embezzled the equivalent of $33,000 from a Greek government agency and fled to the United States before an arrest could be made, was apprehended in Los Angeles on April 27, 1965, and was ordered deported on May 4, 1965. He arrived in Greece on May 8, 1965, where he was taken into custody by Greek authorities.

The border criminal identification activity involves posting of lookouts to prevent the entry or the deportation of aliens from Mexico and Canada. This program resulted in the posting of 2,409 lookouts, and the exclusion or rejection of 983 aliens. Examples of the benefits of this program are cited above under cooperation with other law enforcement agencies.

Frauds. Investigation of possible immigration fraud was conducted during the year in 4,047 cases.

Major emphasis was given to investigations of aliens and other persons engaged in criminal conspiracies to arrange "sham" marriages or to prepare false documentation with which to circumvent the provisions of the immigration laws relating to quota and other restrictions. Other frauds frequently encountered have been false claims to United States citizenship involving the use of spurious identities or fraudulent birth and baptismal certificates, and the counterfeiting and alteration of immigration documents.

In one case, Ignacio E. Silvas, James W. Dunn, and Paul Bernard Dove pleaded guilty in Phoenix, Ariz., to charges of counterfeiting Forms I-151, Alien Registration Receipt Cards. The counterfeit forms were to have been sold through sources in Mexico for amounts up to $500 each. All were placed on probation—Silvas for 3 years and the others for 2 years.

Thomas Foti and Josephine Mourtziou nee Milazzo, operators of the Milazzo Travel Service, New York City, were found guilty on 21 counts of a 30-count indictment charging them with conspiring to make false statements and certifications in applications for first preference visa petitions. They are awaiting imposition of sentence.

There were 1,998 Chinese aliens who confessed during this year to having effected entry into the United States through false claims to United States citizenship. These confessions exposed 3,564 other Chinese persons who entered in the same manner and made 1,192 "slots" unavailable for future use of persons who might, at a later date, make false claims to United States citizenship.

The Fraudulent Document Center, established at El Paso in 1958, had the most productive year since its inception. The files increased at an average rate of 135 cases a month and now contain 10,752 cases relating to Mexican aliens who presented documents in attempts to support false claims to United States citizenship. Service offices and other agencies, drawing on the extensive reserve of information available, directed more than 2,000 inquiries to the Center concerning doubtful documented claims to citizenship. Affirmative or positive responses, indicating the documents presented have been previously used to allege citizenship, were made in connection with 13 percent of the inquiries.

A typical case in the records at the Center involves a Mexican youth who has been encountered four times since 1962, and on each occasion has presented either a birth certificate or baptismal certificate to back up his citizenship claim. Although four different documents were used, the frauds were detected by search of the various indexes and cross-references. A converse situation concerned an individual encountered in the Detroit area who persisted in claiming citizenship until a check with the Center revealed the same birth certificate had been used to support spurious claims by other Mexican nationals on three previous occasions.

Valuable assistance to the Service's efforts to combat document frauds stems from liaison with foreign officials. Mexican authorities have taken action against a number of known document vendors operating in Mexico. Five Mexican subjects were recently arrested in Mexicali, B.C., Mexico, for involvement in falsification of United States immigration documents. Fees of $100 each were charged for altered documents to facilitate entry into the United States.

In another area, a Mexican citizen, previously convicted and sentenced in Mexico for falsification of immigration documents, was arrested again by Mexican police when 68 immigration documents of various types were confiscated. Canadian authorities reportedly discovered 35 blank United States immigration forms while searching the home of a subject suspected of being involved in narcotics traffic.

Criminal Prosecution

The United States attorneys authorized prosecution in 3,638 cases involving violation of the immigration and nationality laws. Of the cases disposed of, 93 percent resulted in convictions with aggregate sentences of 3,421 years and fines of $126,150.

Of the 3,442 convictions, 1,696 aliens were convicted of reentry after deportation without permission (8 U.S.C. 1326), 864 persons were convicted for document frauds (18 U.S.C. 1546), and the average sentence in these cases was 13 months. Of the 405 convictions for nationality violations, 401 were for false representations as a United States citizen (18 U.S.C. 911).

Revocation of Naturalization

Revocation investigations aimed at discovering naturalizations obtained by fraudulent or illegal means often prove difficult and time consuming. Extensive evidence is needed for these court proceedings to meet the "clear, convincing, and unequivocal" burden of proof laid down by the Supreme Court.

Anthony Peter Riela, Apalachin "Crime Convention" delegate, was denaturalized when the Court of Appeals on November 4, 1964, affirmed a revocation order of the District Court. Riela had been naturalized on August 22, 1933, in the United States District Court for the Eastern District of New York by assuming the identity and arrival record of another person. It later developed that Riela had actually entered the United States as a stowaway. Following the decision of the Court of Appeals there was no attempt to seek certiorari and deportation proceedings were instituted on November 23, 1964. These proceedings are still pending.

Domenico D'Agostino, who had attended the "Crime Convention" at Apalachin, N.Y., in 1957 was stripped of his fraudulently gained naturalization when the Court of Appeals ruled against him on November 23, 1964, and upheld the revocation order of the United States District Court. No attempt was made to petition the Supreme Court for writ of certiorari and the denaturalization became final. D'Agostino's 1927 naturalization in the Supreme Court of Niagara County, N.Y., had been obtained by misrepresentation of his true marital status and concealment of a prior arrest record.

Emanuel Riggi, who had been closely associated with racketeers in New Jersey and has been convicted for carrying dangerous weapons and extortion, was naturalized in Elizabeth, N.J., on November 28, 1934. Investigation developed concealment of an arrest record at the time of naturalization, and on November 30, 1964, a suit to revoke his naturalization was filed in the United States District Court, Newark, N.J. These proceedings are still pending.

Two aliens with subversive backgrounds, Mr. and Mrs. Alexandre Sokolov, were also among those deported. Sokolov, a native of U.S.S.R., had entered this country illegally and assumed the identity of a United States citizen named Robert K. Baltch. He married an unidentified woman who had assumed the identity of a United States woman named Joy Ann Garber. Both were indicted by a Federal Grand Jury for conspiracy to commit espionage. After the indictments were dismissed they were deported to Czechoslovakia.

Aliens deported and aliens required to depart.

The number of aliens required to depart without the issuance of formal orders of deportation increased from 73,042 in the last fiscal year to 95,263. Among them were 18,205 crewmen who were technical violators who remained longer than the time for which admitted. There were also 30,095 aliens who departed under safeguards, most of them Mexicans who entered without inspection; this was an increase of 40 percent over last year's figure of 21,550 in this category.

The remaining 46,963 cases of aliens who were required to depart included 31,455 nonimmigrants who failed to maintain status under which admitted, and 13,023 who entered without inspection. The principal nationalities of these aliens were 24,198 Mexicans, 4,025 Cubans, 3,856 Dominicans, 2,207 Canadians, 1,609 British, and 1,457 Filipinos.

At their own request 203 aliens who had fallen into distress were removed from the United States under section 250 of the Immigration and Nationality Act.

Forty-eight mentally incompetent aliens were deported or removed. Up to the time of deportation about $293,000 had been expended for their care in the United States. If they had continued to remain institutionalized at public expense, more than $3,900,000 would have been disbursed for their maintenance and treatment during their expected lifetimes.

DETENTION AND DEPORTATION ACTIVITIES

The number of aliens deported in fiscal year 1965 under orders of deportation was 10,143. This is 1,397 more than the 8,746 deported in fiscal year 1964.

Of the aliens deported, 90 percent or 9,158 had entered without proper documents or entered without inspection or failed to maintain nonimmigrant status. There were 581 deported on criminal, immoral, and narcotic charges, 355 who had been previously deported and reentered without permission and were again deported, and 49 were deported on other miscellaneous charges. None were deported this year on subversive charges although there were a number with subversive backgrounds. By destination, 6,518 aliens were deported to Mexico, 1,044 to Canada, 513 to Greece, 181 to the Dominican Republic, 136 to Italy, and 134 to Spain.

Among the criminals deported was Lorenzo Di Chiara. He was wanted in Italy for armed robbery and was considered a dangerous criminal by Italian authorities. Another criminal, Joseph Stacher, who has a long record of arrests, left the United States under an order of exclusion and deportation. His naturalization had previously

There were 17,041 aliens initially admitted to Service detention facilities and 26,918 to non-Service facilities. The increase of 43 percent in initial admissions is largely the result of the illegal influx of Mexican laborers seeking work after the "Bracero" law expired.

With the illegal entry of aliens rising, the return of Mexicans to their own country expeditiously and economically became even more important. The Border Patrol continued to be responsible for the removal of certain deportable aliens to Mexico through the Leon airlift and Presidio-Ojinaga trainlift. Throughout the year these means were used for returning adult male Mexican alien violators under deportation or voluntary departure proceedings nearer to their homes in Mexico, thereby discouraging their illegal return to the United States.

During fiscal year 1965, 9,720 aliens were removed by airlift and 14,822 aliens were removed by Presidio-Ojinaga trainlift. As of the close of the fiscal year, 66,021 deportable aliens had been airlifted to the interior of Mexico since the inception of the operation on November 29, 1957. Since September 26, 1956, 73,356 deportable aliens have been moved to Presidio, Tex., by bus for removal to Chihuahua, Chihuahua, Mexico, by the train. The total includes 120 deportable aliens airlifted to Leon from Mexicali, B.C., in May 1965.

The effectiveness of this procedure is demonstrated by the fact that during the year only 2,412 aliens were located after illegal entry and identified as having been previously removed by the airlift. Also, 1,931 aliens were located after illegal entry whose records reflect they were previously removed by the bus-trainlift.

HEARINGS AND LITIGATIONS

Exclusion and Deportation Hearings

The fiscal year total of deportation hearings referred to Special Inquiry Officers reached a new record high of 19,475. During the month of June 1965 referrals of 2,120 deportation hearings marked the highest number ever reported in any single month. Completions of cases kept substantially abreast of receipts. The number of exclusion hearings maintained a declining trend, showing a 14 percent decrease as compared with 1964. Applications for withholding of deportation on a claim of physical persecution numbered 257 in fiscal year 1965—about the same number as during the previous year. To the long list of countries concerning which such claims of physical persecution were made in previous years, there were added during 1965: Cyprus, Ecuador, England, Iran, Lithuania, Jamaica, Panama, South Africa, and Trinidad.

Special Inquiry Officers continued to be faced with difficult factual and legal questions calling for a careful, scrupulously independent balancing of the evidence, especially in those cases calling for exercise of discretionary authority to grant relief from deportation. Noteworthy is the 56 percent increase in the receipt of applications (923) during 1965 for adjustment of status under section 245 of the act.

A repetitive problem facing Special Inquiry Officers was the necessity for adjudicating applications for adjustment of status under section 245 made by natives of Central and South America who had come to the United States as visitors. The pattern most frequently encountered presented cases in which it appeared that the alien left his job and family behind, came to the United States with a round-trip ticket for an alleged vacation, took employment here a few days after arrival, and then sought to acquire permanent immigrant status.

While the customary claim was that the alien's intention to remain permanently did not ripen until after his arrival, the Special Inquiry Officers were faced with evidence indicating such things as affirmative falsehoods to American consuls abroad at the time of application for nonimmigrant visas, marriage to a United States citizen promptly after arrival upon a basis of prearrangements made abroad, and married women leaving behind them their husbands and children and seeking permanent residence here shortly after arrival. The cases are obviously fraught with emotionalism and possibility of fraud, falsehood, and subterfuge, calling for a courageous, firm, but wholly fair approach on the part of hearing officers, consistent with the spirit of the law, the national interest, and the humanitarian factors involved in each individual situation.

As chief law officer, the General Counsel functions principally as advisor to the Commissioner and operation officials on legal matters in carrying out Service enforcement and administrative duties under the immigration and nationality statutes. He provides executive and professional direction to the four Service Regional Counsels, who maintain professional supervision over trial attorneys serving primarily as representatives of the Government in formal exclusion, expulsion, and rescission hearings before special inquiry officers. Trial Attorneys, when requested, assist United States Attorneys in civil and criminal actions arising out of the immigration and nationality laws.

The upward trend in the volume of trial attorney work continues. Cases prepared for hearings before special inquiry officers amounted to 12,455, 31 percent more than in fiscal year 1964, and appearances at hearings on issues pertaining to deportability or availability of administrative relief to a deportable alien increased by 1,844 (31 percent) over the previous year. These attorneys also appeared on issues of excludability in 408 cases, plus in 153 other hearings, most of the latter involving rescission of status proceedings.

Litigation

There has been a notable increase in litigation contesting Service determinations in immigration matters, few successfully. None of the cases reaching the Supreme Court resulted unfavorably to the Government. Thirty-two more actions were disposed of in the district courts during fiscal year 1965 than the previous year. Only 10 of the 142 district court decisions were unfavorable to the Government. Sixteen more direct petitions for review under section 106 of the Immigration and Nationality Act, as amended, were disposed of by the courts of appeals, only four of 57 such petitions having been decided unfavorably to the Government.

The scope of the Act of September 26, 1961 (sec. 106, I. & N. Act; 8 U.S.C. 1105a), designed to eliminate district court review of administrative exclusion and deportation orders by requiring the filing of petitions for review direct to the United States Courts of Appeals, was further expanded by the Supreme Court in a per curiam order on October 26, 1964, when it reversed and remanded Giova v. Rosenberg, 379 U.S. 18 with directions to the Court of Appeals for the Ninth Circuit to entertain a petition for review, in effect holding that a motion to reopen a deportation order is reviewable exclusively in the lower appellate court. Earlier the Supreme Court in Foti v. INS, 375 U.S. 217 December 16, 1963, declared that not only orders denying suspension of deportation but also consideration of other discretionary relief during the deportation proceeding are merged in the final deportation order, denials of which during the course of the deportation proceeding are reviewable only in the courts of appeals.

Several petitions for certiorari involving questions under the Immigration and Nationality Act were denied by the Supreme Court in the October 1964 term. Upheld in Texas State AFL-CIO v. Kennedy, 379 U.S. 826, was the affirmation by the Court of Appeals 330 F. 2d 217; C.A.D.C., 1964, of the lower court decision which found that the plaintiffs did not have legal standing to challenge the validity of the alien commuter program. In Lam Tat Sin v. Esperdy, 379 U.S. 901, left undisturbed was the ruling by the Second Circuit that the Service had not acted arbitrarily in directing the deportation of the Chinese petitioner to Hong Kong, even though deportation of Chinese to that British Crown colony had been withheld in many other cases. Also left undisturbed (Ng Sui Sang v. Esperdy, 379 U.S. 970) was the finding by the same circuit court that a crewman granted parole was not entitled to a hearing upon revocation of his parole.

The Supreme Court declined 379 U.S. 999, to review the holding of the Sixth Circuit Court of Appeals in Giacomo D'Andrea v. INS, that the record evidence supported the administrative findings, that the sole purpose of the alien's marriage to a United States citizen was to obtain a nonquota visa and evade the immigration laws; and that he lacked the good moral character qualification because of his commission of adultery. A rehearing was denied May 17, 1965 of Patsis v. INS, 380 U.S. 952, wherein the Eighth Circuit ruled that if the Attorney General's discretionary power to adjust status of an alien crewman is taken away after the application has been filed, but before final administrative decision, the application must be denied; further, that the last deportable act is the basis for computing the continuous physical presence requirement for suspension of deportation. The decision of the Ninth Circuit in Calef v. Rosenberg dismissing the petition for judicial review and the appeal from denial of a habeas corpus petition was left undisturbed by the Supreme Court 381 U.S. 914. The question before the latter was whether after deportation proceedings had been reopened at the petitioner's request to reconsider the designation of Italy as the country of deportation, the Court of Appeals properly dismissed the judicial review petition which sought a stay of deportation and consideration of propriety of the designation of Italy.

In Zimmerman v. Lehmann, wherein the court of appeals held that the petitioner should not have been excluded from admission to this country, the Supreme Court declined to review 381 U.S. 925, finding that the petitioner had not acquired United States citizenship by adoption. The record contained no facts showing he was in fact adopted but many facts indicating to the contrary, and he did not in the district court claim such citizenship, having there specifically alleged he was stateless.

Three petitions for certiorari were pending before the Supreme Court at the close of fiscal year 1965. In Scalzo v. Hurney (No. 996 Misc.), after exhausting all administrative remedies and filing a complaint in the district court, but prior to argument and over objection of the Government, plaintiff's attorney took and filed with that court, a deposition from plaintiff's husband, the information so obtained contradicting and enlarging the administrative record. The district court granted summary judgment for the Government, and on appeal was affirmed by the Third Circuit 338 F. 2d 339 which ordered the striking of the deposition from the record, stating: "Only the record of the administrative proceeding itself is pertinent and relevant in this type of action." The petitioner seeks review as to the propriety of that order. Hitai v. INS (No. 1159) raises the question whether Congress can validly make distinctions based on racial factors in the terms and conditions on which it admits aliens to this country for permanent residence. Review is sought in Pavogouzas v. INS (No. 136), whether the 1962 amendment to section 244 of the act barring suspension of deportation to an alien who entered the United States as a crewman applies only to aliens of that class who entered thereafter.

ALIEN ADDRESS REPORTS

In accordance with the requirements of the Immigration and Nationality Act, 3,393,209 aliens filed address reports with this Service in January 1965. This is an increase of 57,618 reports over last year. The three States with the largest number of aliens reporting are: California, 810,400; New York, 620,119; and Texas, 245,880. Other States with large alien populations are Illinois, New Jersey, Florida, Massachusetts, Michigan, Pennsylvania, and Ohio.

The largest number of resident aliens were: Mexican nationality 631,138; Canada 365,252; United Kingdom 257,293; Germany 241,978; Italy 214,618; Poland 126,904; and Cuba 121,051. Residents of other nationalities were under 100,000. The largest number of Mexican nationals lived in California and Texas; Canadians in California, New York, and Michigan; British in California and New York; Germans in California, New York, and Illinois; Italians in New York and New Jersey; Poles in New York and Illinois; and Cubans in Florida and New York.

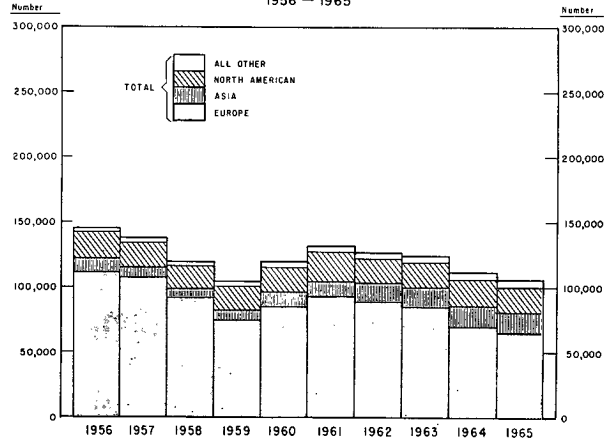

CITIZENSHIP

Judicial Naturalization

Persons Naturalized. Pursuant to Service recommendations entered in Federal and State courts, 104,299 aliens were granted United States citizenship during the fiscal year. This volume, somewhat lower than that of fiscal year 1964, reflects the normal downward trend in naturalization which, during the past few years, has paralleled the gradually diminishing effect of the former Service invitation-to-file program. Recognizing this trend and in furtherance of economy, the Service reduced its naturalization examiner force by 12 positions at the beginning of the 1965 year. Nonetheless, operational currency and the highest standards in the quality of work performance were consistently maintained throughout the year, even though the reduced examiner force was generally below its authorized strength.

While a majority of the new citizens were former nationals of Germany (14,929), Italy (10,742), the United Kingdom (9,370), Canada (8,489), Mexico (5,080), Hungary (4,054), and Poland (4,017), the remainder included nationals of 108 other foreign countries located in all parts of the world. Thus, these newly naturalized persons were representative of many different cultures which may be expected to benefit the American community. Of equal value will be the technical and professional skills found among them. At one naturalization sitting alone, eight aeronautical engineers or aerospace technologists were admitted to citizenship and are presently engaged in furthering the Nation's space effort.

PERSONS NATURALIZED 1956 - 1965

Persons naturalized, 1956-65.

As in former years, the greatest number of new citizens (76,630) qualified for naturalization under the general provisions of the law which require 5 years' residence. There were 24,516 persons naturalized as the spouses and children of citizens after 3 years' residence, while 3,085 others were found eligible without regard to residence, based upon a period of military service. Naturalization under other special provisions of the law totaled only 68.

A substantial number of the naturalized group was the 7,914 natural or adopted children of United States citizens, beneficiaries of petitions filed by their parents. Age as well as youth was also well represented among the new citizens, and several petitioners had attained or passed the century mark at the time they were admitted to citizenship. Illness, often a concomitant of advanced years, made it impossible for some elderly persons to appear at the courthouse for naturalization. Under a special statutory provision, these qualified applicants were able to realize their desire to become citizens in proceedings conducted at their bedside.

Persons Denied Naturalization. When Service investigation establishes that a petitioner cannot meet one of the statutory prerequisites for naturalization, a recommendation for denial upon such basis will be presented to the court, unless the petitioner elects to withdraw or not prosecute the petition. Petitions which are withdrawn or not prosecuted generally are recommended for denial, and are denied by the court, on such grounds, without an adjudication on the merits. The disposition of cases in this manner saves the time of the courts, Service, and petitioners, for the cases are not argued at the court hearing, and the petitioners need not appear at the proceeding. Petitioners in these categories are advised by the naturalization examiners as to what they must do to attain eligibility, and many of them may be expected to qualify on a later date.

A "shut-in" petitioner, 101 years of age, was naturalized in her home in June 1965. Almost 900 of the persons naturalized were 75 years of age or over.

During the fiscal year, 2,059 petitions for naturalization were denied. Of this number, 1,855 petitions for naturalization were denied by the courts pursuant to withdrawal applications, or because they were not prosecuted by the petitioners. However, practically all these withdrawals and failures to prosecute followed administrative determinations that the petitioners could not meet one or more of the statutory requirements for naturalization.

One petitioner, for example, who passed the naturalization literacy test with ease, had previously and falsely claimed he could not read and write English in order to avoid military service under the draft. Rather than face a possible denial for lack of attachment to the Constitution, he decided to withdraw his petition. Other petitioners within this large group were persons who could not meet the good moral character requirement because they had engaged in criminal activity or other misconduct. Illiteracy or lack of knowledge concerning history, government, and the Constitution also accounted for a considerable number of cases which were withdrawn or not prosecuted.

Not all cases, however, were disposed of without an adjudication on the merits. There were 107 petitioners who chose to prosecute their petitions and were denied citizenship because the courts agreed with the Service that their knowledge of the English language, or the history, government, and Constitution was insufficient to permit their naturalization.

After a hearing by the court, 47 other petitioners were refused naturalization because of their ineligibility under various provisions of the statute.

Among the latter group was a person who furnished false testimony concerning his membership in the Communist Party, and another who was found to be lacking in good moral character because he had falsely represented himself to be a United States citizen in connection with his employment. Another 50 petitioners were deceased prior to the court hearing on their petitions.

Related Naturalization Matters

Education Programs. While school attendance in preparation to meet the English language and other educational prerequisites for admission to citizenship is not statutorily required of naturalization applicants, experience has demonstrated that such attendance is the most effective approach to learning. Thus, contributing materially to the success of the Service mission in the naturalization field were programs and activities which furthered the enrollment of resident aliens in the 3,933 public school citizenship classes which were operative during the fiscal year. Throughout the period, the names and addresses of 136,834 newly admitted immigrants, and an additional 43,737 actual applicants for naturalization, were furnished local schools, so that these prospective citizens could be invited to attend and participate in these study groups.

Supplementing these programs were the personal efforts of the naturalization examiners who worked in close cooperation with the schools to encourage class attendance, and whose frequent visits and informal talks to the study groups emphasized the official interest in the students' progress and tended to eliminate discouragement and consequent "dropouts." The effectiveness of the Service measures in this area is demonstrated by the fact that the annual enrollment in citizenship classes totaled 80,180.

Citizenship Day, commemorated annually throughout the United States, and Law Day and Loyalty Day, observed in some States, formed the settings for Service activity designed to emphasize citizenship responsibility and foster the practice of good citizenship by all citizens. Service officers, in cooperation with many patriotic and public-spirited citizens and organizations, planned and participated in many impressive observances and exercises on such occasions to further these objectives. At ceremonies on Jamestown Island, Va., Vice President Hubert Humphrey was the principal speaker. Supreme Court Justice William O. Douglas spoke at proceedings in San Antonio, Tex., and Gov. John A. Burns of Hawaii participated in impressive observances in Honolulu. In a number of areas, naturalization proceedings were televised for the edification of the general public. A Service publication, "Citizenship Day and Constitution Week Bulletin," once again proved its worth as a practical guide to the arrangement of appropriate, meaningful ceremonies.

Some of the 231 aliens who became new citizens at a Law Day ceremony at Fort De Russy, Honolulu, on May 1, 1965.

The Federal Textbook on Citizenship. Since 1940, citizenship textbook material under this general title has been published by the Service, and distributed free of cost for the use of naturalization candidates attending public school citizenship classes. During the fiscal year, 260,629 units of this publication were distributed, exceeding the annual distribution of recent years by many thousands. A major part of the increased demand related to the units entitled "Our Government," "Our American Way of Life," "Our United States," and a related "Teacher's Guide," which were newly published by the end of fiscal year 1964 as the "Becoming a Citizen Series." The reception accorded the new series has amply justified the Service belief that its use will materially advance the objectives of citizenship education and training. Indeed, the demand has been so heavy that the new series is being edited preliminary to a second printing.

The Service effort to supply effective textbook material in the areas of citizenship instruction and training has not overlooked the prospective citizen who, because of circumstances beyond his control, cannot attend citizenship classes. For more than two decades, Service home study courses have been made available to candidates in this group for use in connection with a program of instruction serviced by extension divisions of State universities or State educational authorities. New editions of the home study textbooks, revised and improved, made their appearance in the fiscal year. The enrollment of naturalization candidates in the home study courses totaled 3,318 during the period.

Naturalization Courts and Decisions. A cooperative relationship between the Service and the courts furthered the naturalization effort during the year. Invariably, the courts responded favorably to Service requests for special final hearings needed to expedite the naturalization of military dependents proceeding abroad, or that of other aliens about to depart the United States in connection with important Government projects.

The number of active courts was further reduced from 622 to 600, promoting economy in operation, an earlier disposition of cases, and more impressive final hearings. The year also witnessed the extension of the designated examiner system to all courts, an objective which has been long sought by the Service in the interest of economy and efficiency.

The decision in the Convento case, finalized by appellate action during the fiscal year, solved the naturalization problem of many nonresident Filipinos who enlisted abroad and then served honorably in the U.S. Navy during a war period. The court ruled that such Filipinos could be naturalized without a lawful admission to the United States for permanent residence, if they reenlisted while within this country following the period of war service. Under an earlier interpretation, it had been held that such reenlistment had to precede the war service. In this same area, another court ruled that a Filipino who enlisted abroad, and whose enlistment period was extended for 1 year while he was within the United States, should be regarded as having reenlisted in this country for purposes of naturalization based upon his war service.

The oath of allegiance and renunciation required to be taken by an alien at the time he is naturalized need not include a promise to bear arms if the alien's religious training and belief in a "Supreme Being," precludes the commitment. Under the Universal Military Training and Service Act, a classification as a conscientious objector may be assigned upon the same basis.

During the fiscal year, in U.S. v. Seeger, the draft act provision was attached as unconstitutional because it violated the guarantees of the first amendment relating to the establishment and exercise of religion, and discriminated between forms of religious expression in violation of due process under the fifth amendment. However, the Supreme Court found the provision to be constitutional, holding that belief in a "Supreme Being" is not limited to an orthodox belief in a traditional God, but extends to a belief based upon a power, being, or faith, to which all else is subordinate, or upon which all else is ultimately dependent; and, if the power, belief, or faith occupies in the life of the possessor a place parallel to that filled by the traditional God, the statutory test of belief in a "Supreme Being" will be met. This ruling has broadened the basis upon which naturalization candidates can qualify to take the modified oath.

Derivative Citizens

Citizenship Documents. The Service is authorized by statute to issue certificates of citizenship to persons who have acquired the status at birth abroad through citizen parents, or derived citizenship after foreign birth through the naturalization of parents or marriage to a citizen. From 1957 through 1964, the annual volume of casework in this area steadily increased. This trend leveled off in 1965 as 35,007 citizens received certificates compared with the 35,321 issued documents during the preceding year. Of the total, 17,617 were born citizens while the remaining 17,390 derived citizenship after birth.

The implementation of constructive Service programs did much to maintain derivative citizenship casework at a high level during the fiscal year.

Newly naturalized parents were promptly advised as to the derivative rights of their children and the availability of the certificates. The applications of servicemen, in behalf of their citizen children born during a tour of duty overseas, continued to be processed and heard in large groups at military bases within the United States, promoting economy in operation, and an efficient, early disposition of such cases with a minimum of inconvenience and expense to the servicemen.

The special program to facilitate the issuance and delivery of certificates to citizens born and residing in the Republic of Panama or the Panama Canal Zone was brought to a successful close early in the fiscal year, only to be reopened as the period ended and the vacation season approached. Many of these citizens, precluded by law from obtaining certificates while outside the United States, vacation in this country for the secondary purpose of securing the documents. The special arrangements made during fiscal year 1964 to assure the most expeditious disposition of these cases proved most effective, and they are and will continue to be in force as long as they are needed.

Under the law, a certificate of citizenship is required to be accepted as proof of the holder's status as a citizen by all courts and Government agencies here and abroad. The probative value of the document, and the heavy burden of proof which must be met in cancelling it for illegality or fraud, require the exercise of extreme care to assure that unqualified persons are not issued certificates.

Illustrating the need for such caution was a recent case in which the citizenship claim was premised upon the alleged birth of a deceased parent in the United States. The officer handling the case, unconvinced as to the truth of the allegation, resolved to tap every source of information which could conceivably shed light upon the place of the parent's birth. In the process, he caused the tombstone of the parent to be examined, and discovered thereon an inscription which indicated that the decedent was a native of China. Confronted with this and other evidence, the applicant admitted the falsity of his claim, and no certificate issued.

Despite the care exercised before a certificate of citizenship is issued, 603 documents in this category were administratively cancelled during the fiscal year because fraud was practiced by the applicants. Occasionally, however, applicants are innocent victims of fraud perpetrated by an outsider for monetary gain. In one case, where the citizenship claim was based upon the naturalization of a father, his name as alleged by the applicant was slightly different from the name appearing in his alleged naturalization record. This discrepancy prompted further inquiries by the responsible officer, and it was determined that the naturalized person was not in fact the applicant's father.

The ramifications of this finding were extensive for it adversely affected the immigration or citizenship status of 13 other members of the family. The entire family had acted in good faith, since they honestly believed the naturalized person to be their relative based upon fraudulent representations to such effect by a travel agent in the Azores. Fortunately, their situation was subsequently adjusted through the efforts of the officer in the case, who initiated a further search of naturalization records and succeeded in locating one which actually did relate to the applicant's father.

Replacement and Special Nationality Documents. Under the statute, the Service has authority to replace certificates of naturalization or citizenship which may be mutilated, lost, or destroyed. Similarly, where the holder of one of these documents has undergone a legal change of name through marriage, or by judicial process, the Service may furnish a replacement document in the new name. To protect property rights, and for other legitimate reasons, naturalized citizens sometimes require recognition of their status as such by a foreign state. The authority of the Service to issue special certificates of naturalization accommodates this need. Additionally, the Service may issue certifications as to information in naturalization and citizenship records, where such are required for use in compliance with State statutes, in judicial proceedings, or for other legitimate purposes. In this important area of Service operation 9,278 applications were completed during 1965, a figure which has been more or less constant in recent years.

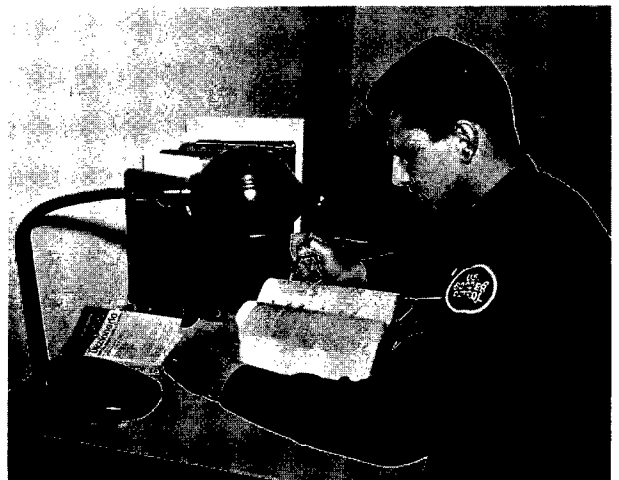

Citizenship Loss. United States citizenship can be lost automatically by the voluntary performance of acts designated as expatriative by statute, or in court proceedings designed to revoke an order of naturalization on the ground that it was procured illegally or by material concealment or willful misrepresentation. Expatriations by operation of statutory law, the first category mentioned, totaled 2,083 during 1965, a sharp drop from the volume of previous years. The lower figure largely reflects the effect of the Supreme Court decision in Schneider v. Rusk which eliminated extended foreign residence as a basis for nationality loss by naturalized citizens. The past year also featured a considerable number of cases in which a finding of expatriation was reversed as a result of the Schneider decision and other restrictive rulings by the Supreme Court during recent years. Emphasizing the effectiveness of the Service effort to prevent the naturalization of disqualified persons is the fact that only two naturalizations were revoked by the courts during the fiscal year.

ADMINISTRATIVE SERVICES

Personnel. Employee Development and Training during fiscal year 1965 included in-Service, out-Service, and foreign official programs. In-Service training consisted of 12 principal programs of instruction, some of which were conducted more than once. Eighteen sessions of these programs were completed by 417 supervisors, journeymen officers, Immigration Patrol Inspector trainees, and records personnel. All were trained at the Officer Development Center, Los Fresnos, Tex. Three new courses were added to the Extension Training Program, namely, "Supervisor Development," "Telecommunications," and "Statistical Coding." The extension training lessons were revised and made current during the year. Employees enrolled in the Extension Training Program completed a total of 840 home-study courses, and completed 6,055 lessons.

The Border Patrol Academy conducted an FAA Peace Officers Refresher Course for 17 Federal

Aviation Agency Peace Officers and four sessions of a 3-week program entitled "The Border Control Operations Course for Foreign Officials." A total of 36 foreign officials from 11 Central and South American countries attended these sessions. In addition, 23 foreign officials from Thailand, Iran, Turkey, Argentina, Viet-Nam, Pretoria West, Jordan, Tunisia, and Ethiopia visited various Service offices to observe the work of the Service mainly in the areas of travel control and border patrol. Sixty-three employees completed interagency training courses, conferences, and seminars.

During the fiscal year the Personnel Officer worked with the Budget Officer and the operating chiefs at the Central Office in carrying out manpower directives from the President, the Bureau of the Budget, and the Department of Justice. Separations during fiscal year 1965 increased to 198 as compared with 143 in fiscal 1964 and 160 in fiscal year 1963. Among the separations during fiscal year 1965 were 92 by retirement and 27 by death.

Incentive Awards. During the year 496 employee suggestions were received, of which 83 were adopted. There were 402 persons recognized for superior performance or special acts. Further, 193 employees were granted quality increases.

Procurement and Property Management. In 1965 further economies were effected in the implementation of the administration policy. Studies of equipment requirements were made, that resulted in curtailment of all but absolutely essential needs. Greater emphasis upon reassignment of equipment and increased utilization of excess property were factors in achieving economies.

Records and Statistics. During fiscal year 1965, the Records Administration and Information Branch added 3,710,520 documents to the Master Index. This is the central index required by section 290 of the Immigration and Nationality Act. This index now contains approximately 40 million index cards. All-purpose searches of the index amounted to 776,728 for the year.

The work measurement reporting system continued to provide information on volume of work and man-hours per unit, rising or falling trends, backlogs and other pertinent data. Its use at all levels of administration frequently formed the basis for improved manpower utilization. A monthly analysis furnishes summary data for the use of Central Office operations and management staffs.

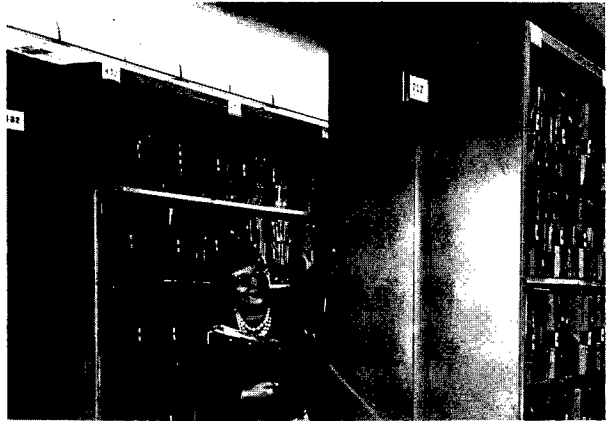

Statistical information on immigration, naturalization, deportation, alien address reports, and passenger travel between the United States and foreign countries is compiled and interpreted for use in studying the effectiveness of immigration and nationality laws in terms of numbers.

During fiscal year 1965, a number of studies were made to determine the likely effect of the various proposals considered by Congress for eliminating the national origins provisions of the Immigration and Nationality Act of 1952.

Management Improvement Programs. The effectiveness of the management analysis programs are reflected throughout this report. All forms were reviewed and revised, canceled, or continued to meet existing needs. Surveys of staffing often resulted in rescheduling and reassigning of officers to effect greater economy and efficiency. In addition to many intangible factors, surveys looking toward work simplification resulted in savings of some $200,000 during the year.

Building Program. The continuing program of improving and modernizing the physical facilities of the Service showed progress with a number of new and remodeled stations completed during the year. Acting jointly with Customs, border inspection stations and cottages were completed at Sasabe, Ariz., Wild Horse, Mont., and Willow Creek, Mont. Under the Area Redevelopment Administration, cottages for inspectors and customs officers were completed at Eastport and Porthill, Idaho. In addition, the General Services Administration completed or improved the inspection stations at Brownsville, Tex., Nogales, Ariz., Sweetgrass, Mont., and Vanceboro, Maine. Border patrol stations were constructed by the Service at Fort Hancock and Fort Stockton, Tex., and Shelby, Mont.

Newly installed open-shelf filing in Seattle.

- ^{1/} An immigrant is an alien admitted for permanent residence. A nonimmigrant is an alien admitted for temporary residence. Returning resident aliens who have once been counted as immigrants are included with nonimmigrants, although the immigration laws define such aliens as immigrants.
- ^{2/} Prior to Act of September 22, 1959, all sons or daughters of U.S. citizens over 21 years of age were classified as fourth preference quota. Adopted sons and daughters with petitions approved prior to September 22, 1959, remained in fourth preference.
- ^{3/} Prior to Act of September 22, 1959, included only children under 21 of resident aliens. Adult sons or daughters of resident aliens were classified as nonpreference quota.
- ^{4/} Prior to Act of September 22, 1959, classified as nonpreference quota.
- ^{5/} Includes 3 displaced persons in 1962 and 1 in 1963 whose status was adjusted under Sec. 4, Displaced Persons Act of 1948.
- ^{6/} Class established by Act of September 26, 1961.
- ^{7/} Includes 4 foreign government officials in 1961, 3 in 1963, 2 in 1964, and 1 in 1965 whose status was adjusted under Section 13, Act of September 11, 1957.
- ^{8/} Classes established by Act of September 21, 1961.

TABLE 7. ANNUAL QUOTAS AND QUOTA IMMIGRANTS ADMITTED:
YEARS ENDED JUNE 30, 1961 - 1965

Numbers of quota visas issued and quota immigrants admitted will not necessarily agree. Differences may be caused by failure of the alien to make use of the visa issued, or by immigrants who are admitted to the United States in the year following the one in which the visa was issued, or by adjustments chargeable to future years.

TABLE 13. IMMIGRATION BY COUNTRY, FOR DECADES:
1820 - 1965 ^{1/}

^{1/}From 1820 to 1867 figures represent alien passengers arrived; 1868 to 1891 inclusive and 1895 to 1897 inclusive, immigrant aliens arrived; 1892 to 1894 inclusive and from 1898 to present time immigrant aliens admitted. Date for years prior to 1906 relate to country whence alien came; thereafter to country of last permanent residence. Because of changes in boundaries and changes in lists of countries, date for certain countries are not comparable throughout.

^{1/} Cases of 359 persons expatriated for departing from or remaining away from the U.S. to avoid military service, reported for 1955-1963, were not included because this statutory provision was ruled unconstitutional by the U.S. Supreme Court on February 18, 1963. (Kennedy v. Francisco Mendoza-Martinez (372 U.S. 144) and Rusk v. Joseph Henry Cort (372 U.S. 224)).

^{2/} The Supreme Court decision in Schneider v. Rusk (377 U.S. 163, May 18, 1964) ruled as unconstitutional statutory provisions which cause naturalized citizens to lose their nationality by extended residence abroad.

^{3/} Naturalized U.S. citizens expatriated in countries with which the United States has treaties or conventions providing on a reciprocal basis for loss of nationality through extended residence in the country of original citizenship.
